Two poems by Adam Fieled from the Apparition Poem series

#238

If she drinks herself to death in London, I'll cry like a bourgeois runt, I said. It's not just that you're dead—the kind of discipline that might affix itself (bourgeois runts have a bias towards life) to shots is—she chewed me out about this—wait, what did she say?

#414

And out of this nexus, O sacred scribe, came absolutely no one.
I don't know what you expected to find here. This warm, safe, comforting suburb has a smother button by which souls are unraveled.
Who would know better than you?
Even if you're only in the back of your mind asphyxiating. He looked out the window—cars dashed by on Limekiln Pike. What is it, he said, are you dead or do you think you're Shakespeare?
